

WARRIOR MEXICANS CHARGES BATTLE REARING BATTLE BASIS OF INQUIRY

Sheriff's Posse at Chester-town, Md., Exchanges Shots With Attackers. THROUGHS SEEKS THE LIFE OF NEGRO MURDERER. Plea to Siegers Falls on Deaf Ears. Cries of Vengeance Ring Out in Answer. COMMERCIAL COMMISSION SENDS OUT QUESTIONS TO EASTERN TERRITORY CARRIERS. SEEMS TO DETERMINE ADEQUATE REVENUES. INTERROGATIONS GO TO HEART OF PHYSICAL AND FINANCIAL OPERATIONS OF ROADS. CONGRATULATORY MESSAGES POUR IN ON WILSON AT PASS CHRISTIAN. EXPECTS TO WORSHIP IN TINY CHURCH NEARBY. Chief Executive Prefers Rest Ashore to Sea Trips—Fireman Tells of "Call-Down."

CHESBERTOWN, Md., December 28.—Up to 2 o'clock there had been no renewal of the attack on the mob, and it was seen that its numbers had dwindled greatly. From fully 1,000 men at the outset of the struggle scarcely 300 remained about the jail at this hour. Meanwhile the jail's defenders had barricaded the broken doors and were awaiting further developments. CHESBERTOWN, Md., December 27.—Just at midnight tonight a mob which had gathered around the Kent county jail here determined to lynch Norman Mabel, colored, the self-confessed murderer of John R. Coleman, a farmer, last Tuesday night, forced two of the doors of the jail. Shots were exchanged between the mob and the jailers, but no one was hit on either side. The mob was met inside the jail by State's Attorney H. W. Vickers, Sheriff W. T. Brown and his corps of fifteen special deputies with rifles. The mob, however, refused to leave the jail. The sheriff ordered the deputies to fire over the heads of the mob. Two volleys brought the infuriated assailants to a stop. A suppressed growl ran through their ranks and cries of vengeance were heard. Here and there from the crowd came scattered shots, but none of the bullets entered the corridor where the officers were gathered. Held at Bay for Time. The determined front of the law's guardians held the mob at bay for the time at least, but apparently did not lessen its determination to wreak vengeance upon the negro. The mob refused to disperse and crowded close to the broken doors, seemingly waiting for some one to make the first rush against the little band of officers. Presently five men bolted into the corridor, the leader bearing a sledge hammer, with which the cell door was broken. The mob pressed around the door, waiting to rush to the assistance of the leaders. For a moment it looked as if the guards would be overpowered. Former Sheriff William H. McKee, who was acting as deputy, faced the would-be lynchers single-handed, wrenched the hammer from the leader's hand and forced him and his four companions from the corridor. In sudden silence the mob withdrew a short distance outside, but only to open fire upon the windows on the second floor, where Mabel and the other negroes were confined in connection with the crime are confined. Volley after volley from half a hundred pistols and rifles was directed at the second story, and scarcely a pane of glass in the windows was left. Sheriff Brown, who was on the second floor, ordered the negroes to lie down close under the windows so as to escape the flying shots. The mob, however, refused to do so, and again close to the jail, waiting for an opportunity to make another rush. The officers were determined to defend Mabel if it were possible. Sheriff Brown and Mr. Vickers instructed the deputies as a last resort to fire upon the mob and not over the heads of the mob. The mob, however, was of suspense on the part of the officers. Begs Mob to Disperse. Former Judge James Alfred Pearce, who had spent several hours in the jail, went to the door and begged the mob to disperse. The next men heard in silence, but did not relax from their hostile attitude. When the judge appeared to address them his appearance was a signal for an outbreak. The mob will lynch the negro before morning," was cried by hundreds of voices. "You had better give him up now and save your own skins." The jail here is not constructed to withstand a determined assault. Fearing mob violence, as the result of the confession that he killed Coleman and robbed the body of $50, the authorities earlier in the day made plans to take the negro to Baltimore for safekeeping and four other negroes who were under arrest for alleged complicity in the crime. They were prevented from carrying out their plans, however, by the mob of between 500 and 1,000 men who surround the jail. Since early this morning the crowd in front of the little jail steadily increased as the result of lynchings were fresh and the mob was growing more and more determined. Sheriff Brown made secret preparations to take his prisoners out of town in an automobile. The crowd was warned, however, and when the car appeared at the rear entrance to the jail it was surrounded by infuriated men in such numbers that the officers who were waiting to take out the prisoners abandoned the idea and returned the prisoners to their cells. Mob Surrounds Jail. Then the balked mob swarmed up the jail steps. The doors had been securely fastened and no answer was given to repeated knocks. After pounding on the doors for several minutes the men formed a complete cordon about the jail, so that no one could enter or leave without their knowledge. Later the angry temper of the throng was calmed somewhat by the appearance of Judge Hooper, who the negroes would be held here and that a court would call a special session of the grand jury here Monday to take up the case. Mr. Vickers implored the assembly to uphold the law and allow the law to take its course. IS MATRIMONY FIEND. Multiple Husband Jailed When He Shakes Wife No. 10 for No. 1. NEW YORK, December 27.—The matrimony habit had Joseph Kohler so completely in its grip that he finished serving a prison sentence for having nine wives, he took a tenth. Wife No. 10 brought him into court today and he pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy. When the tenth Mrs. Kohler had him arrested he had gone back to his first wife, whom he married twenty-two years ago when he was seventeen years old, and by whom he had seven children. Three of Kohler's wives appeared against him five years ago, when he was sent to prison for four and a half years. According to the records produced in court today his first wife was arrested for bigamy during his first honeymoon, and his career as a multiple husband began soon after.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE NEW YEAR. FARISS, TRAIN BANDIT, IS SENTENCED TO DIE. BRIG. GEN. TORNEY CALLED BY DEATH. TUMULT EXTENDS AID FOR A NEW TAMPICO. Politicians Declare an Understanding Existing Regarding Mitchell's Appointments. NEW YORK, December 27.—An understanding-it can hardly at this stage be called an alliance-is reported to have been reached between Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, and Thomas E. Russell, Tammany leader of the twenty-ninth district, for the purpose of accomplishing the downfall of Charles F. Murphy as democratic leader in New York city and state capturing the organization for the President. Mr. Russell, who is a law partner of J. Montgomery Hare, has been held to be the chief of the Tammany leaders who are eager to purify the Tammany organization from within, starting with the election of Mr. Murphy. This interest of the President's secretary in New York politics is believed in certain quarters to have been shown in the manipulations and conferences about the appointments to commissionships in the incoming municipal administration. The understanding with Mr. Russell, it is argued, explains the apparent victory of the partisans of J. Montgomery Hare in having George V. Mulvan declared out of the race for corporation counsel. The reports that there had been suggestions from Washington, inspired by the friends of Mr. Hare, that Mr. Mitchell did well to consider another man than Mr. Mulvan for this important post are now taken to indicate Mr. Tumulty's interest, and his inspiration is assumed to have been the reorganization of the party. And it is said that the interest of Mr. Tumulty in the local situation has been shown in other matters than that of the corporation counsel. Suggestions coming in roundabout ways, to be sure, but suggestions none the less-have been received in the places where this fact would be most potent, and there have been developments that are expected to bear substantial fruit after the list of appointees is made public December 31. William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, is a New York member of President Wilson's cabinet who also is interested in the local plight of the democratic party and its active interest has been quickened, as it were, by reports of Mr. Tumulty's interest. Mr. McAdoo, it is said, would never venture to even suggest an appointment to Mr. Mitchell, but he has deeply at heart the reorganization of the party in this city and state, and he is imbued with the conviction that the work shall be done here and by New Yorkers and without suggestion or dictation from anybody outside of the state. Mr. McAdoo's friends go even further. They say that he will direct all the force of his influence not only among political leaders in this city, but at Washington, to bring the crew ashore, and that the hands of the local democrats, and that when the crucial time comes he will have the situation held entirely in his own hands. SAILORS HAVE VARIOLA. Two Cases Landed From Battleship Ohio—Vessel to Be Fumigated. LEWIS, Del., December 27.—Two mild cases of variola were landed today from the battleship Ohio, which arrived at the Delaware breakwater Christmas day with smallpox on board. A large quantity of baggage and a number of hammocks were also brought ashore and placed in a disinfecting chamber. If the weather continues to moderate it is planned to bring the crew ashore. The officers will be the last to leave the battleship. The Ohio will be thoroughly fumigated tomorrow, and the government doctors say they do not fear the disease will spread. (Continued on Second Page.)

WARRIOR MEXICANS CHARGES BATTLE REARING BATTLE BASIS OF INQUIRY

Troops of U. S. Say There Must Be No Firing Over Border. REBELS APPROACHING FEDERALS AT OJINAGA. Rumored Huerta May Retire Early Next Year in Favor of Gerostieta. JUAREZ, Mexico, December 27.—Warnings were given today by United States troops to both federals and rebels that if there is a battle at Ojinaga there must be no firing across the border. The warnings were sent from Presidio, Tex., because of the advance of the rebel army from Chihuahua to attack the federals at Ojinaga. The late reports were that the rebels were not yet within sight of the federal stronghold. An agent of Gen. Villa arrived from Chihuahua today to arrange for the release of Luis Terrazas, son of the Mexican landowner, who is held by Villa for a ransom said to be $250,000 gold. The father of Terrazas has expressed willingness to pay the money, but has asked for a guarantee of his son's safe conduct to the United States. The prisoner has been kept in a cell in the state capital at Chihuahua ever since the rebels occupied that city. Officers Get Property. All of the homes of the Terrazas, Cresco and other rich Mexican families charged with having sympathized with Huerta, have been looted by Gen. Villa to his officers. The property was confiscated several weeks ago. Alberto Terrazas, a colonel in the ranks of the federal volunteers, who accompanied the federalists in their flight from Chihuahua, resigned and crossed to Presidio. Japanese agents who feared that Gen. Villa might stir up resentment against their countrymen in Mexico because Huerta had placed orders for arms in Japan said they had received word from Gen. Villa that Japanese subjects would be protected by the British vice consul in Chihuahua. Villa had assured the Japanese that he would not molest them. On hearing that his father, mother, wife and child had been burned to death in the Japanese consulate in Juarez today became insane. He was told his family had been killed because he was fighting with the rebels. Huerta May Retire. MEXICO CITY, December 27.—That Enrique Gerostieta, minister of justice, will become president of Mexico early next year is the belief of many here. Gerostieta is to be named minister of foreign affairs, according to the version of the cabinet. He will retire from the presidency, in which case the foreign minister succeeded him. Senor Gerostieta is well along in years. He was a lawyer at Monterey, who was elected to the cabinet in 1911. He has a folio of finance, but, instead, was appointed minister of justice. Railroads Face Tie-Up. The railroads are again facing the prospect of a tie-up for lack of fuel oil. The interruption by the rebels of the line between Tampico and San Luis Potosi, if maintained, would mean that the wheels will be turning at a snail's pace of the national system, according to a high local authority. The Mexican line between the capital and Vera Cruz has sufficient supply, it is said, for twenty or thirty days. It is believed in railroad circles that the government will be directed with more persistence than ever toward accomplishing this tie-up, which would practically put the northern country at their mercy. Protest Sent to U. S. Mexico has forwarded a protest to its representative at Washington, and it is announced, will be presented to the State Department, against alleged assistance given by Americans to the rebels at Tampico and Mazatlan. The complaint is based on representations made by the governor of Tamaulipas, and the federal authorities at Mazatlan to the department of the interior. The governor alleges that Clarence A. Miller, the American consul at Tampico, has made adverse comments against the federalists. He further alleges that the rebels would be assisted by the American flag to communicate with the forces along the river and that during the attack against Tampico, provisions were furnished to the rebels in these launches. Said to Have Aided Rebels. The authorities at Mazatlan, in their complaint, asserted that American vessels along the coast were in constant communication with the rebels and furnished them with war material. These complaints were taken under consideration immediately by the Mexican foreign office and a protest was prepared. El Diario Oficial today carried a warning to foreign correspondents that they would be deported if they furnished false news. If they sent out of Mexico alarming or false stories. President Huerta promised to attend a ball at the Country Club tonight, but he has postponed his going on the promise of the American charge, Nelson O'Shaughnessy, to attend. Tampico Attack Probable. VERA CRUZ, December 27.—A careful estimate of the rebel army in the state of Tamaulipas places the total at 15,000. The majority of these are around Victoria, but a considerable force is near Tampico, and it is possible that another attack against the port will commence early in the week. The federals defending Tampico and outlying districts approximate 3,000. The rebels have a little farther northward rebels in large numbers continue to hold positions. An additional carload of ammunition sent from Victoria reached these rebels yesterday. Control Oil Zone. To the southwest of Tampico the rebels under Gen. Candido Aguilar hold Panuco and the railroad from Tampico to San Luis Potosi is reported to be cut. The rebels are almost in absolute control of the oil zone. An official of the International Association of American Petroleum Producers (Continued on Twelfth Page.)

ABLE TO HANDLE STRIKE. BIG RAPIDS, Mich., December 27.—Gov. Ferris does not look with favor upon an investigation by the government of affairs in the Calumet strike zone. "I have notified President Wilson that so far as an investigation of the copper strike is concerned we can look out for our own affairs without outside interference," said the governor. CALUMET, Mich., December 27.—The deportation of Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners and leader of the copper miners' strike, who was escorted from Hancock last night after being shot and clubbed, will be investigated by a special grand jury when it resumes its sessions next Tuesday. Sheriff Cruse today began an inquiry into the facts of Moyer's departure in response to telegrams from Gov. Ferris and George Nichols, the special prosecutor in charge of the grand jury. Both requested him to make a full statement of the result of his investigations. News of the circumstances of Moyer's departure did not become generally known in the strike region until Moyer had reached the Bay, Wis., today and told of his injuries. McNaughton Confronts Moyer. "Any charge by Mr. Moyer that I had any part in the occurrences of last night at Hancock is absolutely and unqualifiedly false," said James McNaughton of the Calumet and Hecla Company today. "I passed the evening in Calumet accompanying my wife in calling on friends and in the morning I went to my home to a social club. I certainly could not have been in Hancock at the time of the shooting." An Associated Press representative saw Mr. McNaughton in the club about 9 o'clock last night. Warrants were served tonight on the business manager and a dozen or more employees of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company." The warrants were sworn out under the statutes relating to felony, and the men were held in the county jail. The complaints were made by Sheriff Cruse, and were a sequel to an extra publication of a socialist newspaper in Hancock, the charge being "conspiracy to publish misstatements calculated to injure the business of the company